JavaScript Developer in the Innovation Team (m/f/x)

Premstätten | Full-Time | Immediate Start

What you'll be doing:

- Design and implement state-of-the-art web applications in a highly innovative telecommunication/IoT environment
- Connecting the frontend via RESTful Web Services to the business processes
- Conception and development of node.js applications/microservices based on serverless frameworks
- Implementing and using Continuous Delivery Pipelines for your projects
- Software quality assurance through unit and acceptance tests
- Push forward projects by implementing new techniques and new technologies

What you bring to the role:

- You have completed an IT education or have comparable professional experience
- You have profound knowledge and first professional experience in JavaScript in front- and backend
- You have experience in at least one of the following JS-Frameworks: React, Angular or Vue.js along with an interest in technologies like webpack, SASS and BEM
- You have a passion for designing and developing with Node.js both for prototyping and production code, using TypeScript and TDD methodology
- You are familiar with version control software
- You have strong communication skills in English (verbal and written). German would be an asset.
- You have a profound technical understanding and know how to convert ideas into code independently, yet you don't hesitate to ask for help when you need it
- You thrive for development and stay on the loop of what's new in the technical field
- You work independently, have a quick grasp, can quickly convert technical explanations into code
- You are very conscientious and accurate, but can handle a very dynamic setting and adapt easily
